Q.2 Imagine you are selected to represent your institute at a national-level tech conference. How would you prepare for your public speaking session to ensure audience engagement, clarity, and professionalism? Discuss the role of body language and voice modulation in your strategy. [14]

Q.3 Your team is facing frequent conflicts and delays in completing the college project (capstone project) due to lack of cohesion among team members. Analyse how interpersonal skills like emotional intelligence, leadership, and negotiation can help resolve the conflict and improve group performance. [14]

Q.4 You are an intern in a company with tight deadlines and high expectations. Describe a real-world plan on how you would use time management tools and stress management techniques to balance productivity and well-being. Support your answer with examples. [14]

Q.5 You are a junior executive in a boardroom meeting where a senior manager asks you to tweak a report to show better performance than reality. Analyze this situation using the concepts of professional ethics and business etiquette. What would you do and why? [14]

Q.6 What do you understand by a Group Discussion? State the Do's and Don'ts of participating in a GD. [14]

Q.7 You're applying for your dream role in a leading tech company. Draft a plan to tailor your resume based on the company's profile and job description. Justify how your format and content reflect professional writing standards. [14]

Q.8 As a B. Tech student, you are unsure whether to pursue a job or start your own venture. Compare and contrast the employability and corporate skills required in both paths. Conclude with your choice and a justification based on your self-assessment. [14]

Q.9 You are newly appointed as the team leader for a technical club. Describe how you would develop and demonstrate leadership qualities to build trust, motivate your team, and achieve targets. Use examples from real or hypothetical scenarios. [14]
